IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Edna Baldwin, who died 29 years ago today, Feb. 2, 1933.
February brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest;
You will never be forgotten,
By the one who loved you best.
The beautiful things you did for me,
Live in my heart each day,
And keep you ever near and dear to me,
Though you have passed away.
A precious one from me is gone,
A voice I love is still.
A place is vacant in my home,
Which never can be filled.

Heart Disease 57% Death Take

(Special to Times-Virginian)

New York, February 13 — Heart disease is causing 57.0 percent of all deaths among residents of Appomattox County, according to official government figures.

The report is made by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in its latest annual summary of vital statistics, covering all sections of the country. The findings are especially pertinent at this time because of National Heart Month.

The problems posed by heart disease are proving hard to solve. In some directions, however, definite progress has been made, with the result that complete or partial cures can now be effected in cases that were once considered hopeless.

Advances of this sort have been noted in heart surgery, in the development of new drugs to prevent or dissolve blood clots, in the methods of limiting the damage caused by strokes and in the treatment of rheumatic heart cases.

But, despite all the achievements, there is much to be accomplished before there can be any real cut in the heart toll.

The 57.0 percent mortality among Appomattox County residents was somewhat higher than the average in the rest of the United States, 54.9 percent.

The current vital statistics report shows, in the case of Appomattox County, a total of 114 deaths of local residents in 1959 of which 65 were caused by heart conditions.

Coronary heart disease, with 56 victims, was the chief offender locally.
